

`print_iris`

What it does:

This is the print method for classes `iris_summary`. This is what happens when you print the result of `summarize_iris`. This controls how it looks in the console. It prints a title of sorts and then prints the summary table for easier viewing.

Input:

x. This is supposed to be an `iris_summary` object which comes from the `summarize_iris` function. There are optional arguments but none are used here.

Output:

Prints to console. It returns the object invisibly, which means you primarily see the text.

Why I made it:

I did this so that the `iris_summary` object would display better when printed and to demonstrate understanding of S3 print methods for custom class functionality.
